Lionel Shinder heads '91 UJA Campaign

'More than ever we must devote all our energies to saving Jewish lives'

Dr. Eli Rabin, president of the Jewish Community Council of Ottawa/Vaad Ha'Ir, has announced the appointment of Lionel J. Shinder as general chairman of the 1991 United Jewish Appeal Campaign.

He succeeds Stephen Greenberg under whom he served as deputy chairman for the 1990 campaign.

Mr. Shinder takes the reins in the vitally important year of Operation Exodus when thousands of Jews are finally being released from the Soviet Union after decades of demonstrations and worldwide lobbying on their behalf, to be rescued and resettled in Israel.

A native Ottawan, Lionel is the son of the late Sylvia and Harry Shinder. In accepting the UJA chairmanship he adds another link to the already impressive chain of the Shinder family's commitment to community. His parents, his siblings and their spouses, have given generously of their time and energy to Jewish communal causes over the course of several decades.

In the retail business for many years, Mr. Shinder was the proprietor of Lionel's Men's Wear, which specialized in gentlemen's fine clothing. For the past eight years he has been in the field of real estate, and in 1987 established his own company, District Realty, which has enjoyed a great measure of success.

In addition to his involvement in United Jewish Appeal, Lionel has been active in several local organizations, including B'nai B'rith, Congregation Beth Shalom, the United Way, the Ottawa Boys Club, and the Ottawa Civic and Royal Ottawa Hospital campaigns.

As members of the emotion-charged mission to Poland and Israel in May of this year, Lionel and his wife were privileged to participate in a joyous pre-dawn greeting of newly-arrived Russian olim at Ben-Gurion Airport.

"Seeing the faces of the Russian Jews, young and old, seeing them set their feet on Israeli soil for the first time — in freedom — was truly inspiring", he says.

"More than ever, we must devote all our energies to saving Jewish lives," the 1991 chairman says.

Lionel and his wife, Leslie, are the parents of two children, Jason and Reesa.

Roslyn Kimmel named UJA Wos. Div. chair

Roslyn Kimmel will chair the Women's Division of the 1991 United Jewish Appeal Campaign, Jewish Community Council President Dr. Eli Rabin has announced.

She succeeds Vera Klein with whom she worked as deputy chairman during the 1990 campaign.

A native of Ottawa, Roslyn is the daughter of Leema and the late Samuel Magidson. She holds a BA from Carleton University and a BEd from Queen's University. Currently she is the editor of a newsletter published by The Quickie Convenience Stores.

Involved in Jewish communal life for most of her adult years, Roslyn has been active in Hadassah-WIZO, served as chair of the Talmud Torah Afternoon and Akiva High School boards and is presently a member of the board of directors of the Jewish Community Centre. In addition, she led the highly successful Family Mission to Israel in March.

Active on the UJA Women's Division Cabinet for the past 10 years, Roslyn has many plans in the works for this year of Operation Exodus. Some of these have already been implemented and the rest are being worked out by the 51 members of her enthusiastic cabinet.

Among her goals are increased giving, education and awareness of Israel's and local needs.

"Every woman should contribute to improving the quality of life in our community and in Israel," Roslyn says.

"We are living in one of the most historic times of our people. As we recognize the exciting and joyous opportunity at hand, we must also recognize and accept the challenges and responsibilities that accompany the exodus from the Soviet Union."

The Women's Division chairman feels very strongly about the opportunity diaspora Jews are being given to free fellow Jews from the Soviet Union.

"In the future when we are asked by our children how we reacted to the opportunity of freeing our Soviet brethren," she says, "it is my hope that each of us can respond by saying, 'I was involved in making that exodus successful.'"

Roslyn and her husband, Arnold, are the parents of two children, Lisa and Michael.

New JCC logo reflects Canadian/Jewish ties, changes in the social structure

The Jewish Community Centre, along with many baby boomers, is preparing to celebrate its 40th birthday. The Centre's actual birthday will be June 15, 1991, marking the day it opened its doors 40 years ago.

As part of this celebration, the JCC is proud to introduce the new Jewish Community Centre of Ottawa logo, specially designed by M.A.X. A.D. to reflect what the Centre is today.

"Turning 40 is a fitting occasion to redefine who we are," said JCC President Ralph Kassic.

"We have evolved in these 40 years into a full service social, cultural, recreational and educational facility. Our new logo symbolizes our strong sense of identity and mission."

Today, through programs such as the newly opened day care service and greatly expanded seniors programs, the Centre serves all age groups, from infants to the elderly. The logo's stylized faces of varying heights and sizes symbolize this commitment.

Today, the Centre serves a community which is proud of both its Jewish and Canadian identities. The logo's Star of David shading into a maple leaf symbolizes this integration.

Today, the Centre offers avenues for Jewish expression to all sectors of our community — secular, religious, affiliated, assimilated, special needs, special talents. The JCC believes it is central to the preservation of our community's Jewish identity. The varying shapes encompassed within the logo's Star of David symbolize this belief.

The Centre, today, is also sensitive to the changing social structure of our community. The family unit in this logo is stylized so that it could suggest either a traditional family unit or the growing number of non-traditional families whose needs the Centre seeks to meet. The "open" end of the logo's Star of David suggests movement, progress, and receptiveness to change, and reflects the Centre's desire to respond to our quickly changing social needs.

Ottawa Jewish Community Responds To Tragedy In Israel

The Jewish Community Council of Ottawa is shocked and outraged at the senseless murder of a young Canadian girl on a Tel-Aviv beach.

We sympathize with the family of Morrie Kimmelman and the entire Toronto Jewish Community. We are especially touched by this terrible act of terror as young members of the Ottawa Jewish Community were in close proximity to the group on the beach at the time.

Terrorism still abounds in the Mid-East. While we commend the Canadian government for its swift condemnation of this violent act, we urge the government to clearly state that it will not recognize or enter into negotiation with groups or organizations associated with this evil deed.

We support the position of the Israeli government not to engage in a dialogue with groups unwilling to renounce violence. Those bent on the destruction of the Jewish State are not worthy of recognition or to be given credibility.

Vaad Report

Dr. Eli Rabin

PRESIDENT, OTTAWA VAAD HA'IR
JEWISH COMMUNITY COUNCIL

VAAD EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The Annual Meeting held on June 13th permitted us as a community to thank and reward many within our midst who have given of their time, efforts and talents for the benefit of the agencies and committees of the Vaad. Once again, congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Abe Palmer on their receipt of the Gilbert Greenberg Distinguished Service Award and to Morris Presser for receiving the Freiman Family Young Leadership Award.

The "Meeting" also marks the end of the operational year. On July 12th the first executive committee meeting of the new year took place. Two new members of the committee will serve during the next year. Lionel Shinder replaces Stephen Greenberg as General Chairman of the U.J.A. and Roslyn Kimmel takes her place on the committee as Women's Division Chairwoman. Ruth Berger leaves the committee and Vera Klein takes her place as Chairperson of Women's Federation. Once again we sincerely thank the outgoing members for their hard work and dedication, and we welcome the new members of the Committee and look forward to their invaluable input during our deliberations.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

At the end of September the Board of Trustees will meet for the first time in this current year. I would like to welcome all of the new appointees to the "Board" and all of us look forward to lively and productive sessions. At this time I would like to thank all of the outgoing trustees for their dedication to the "Board" during the past few years.

At the upcoming meeting we will look forward to welcoming the Sephardi Association of Ottawa (Association Sepharade d'Ottawa) and we look forward to their participation in the Vaad.

OPERATION EXODUS

On June 27th a reception was held at the Chateau Laurier to officially inaugurate Operation Exodus and the United Jewish Appeal Campaign for 1991. The program focussed on the historic movement of Jews from the Soviet Union to Israel and the important role of Diaspora Jewry in the support and maintenance of the refugees who are leaving in ever growing numbers.

At the end of May over 1,100,000 persons in the Soviet Union had applied for the right to emigrate to Israel. The figures are staggering and far outstrip the original estimates provided last November by representatives of the Jewish Agency. According to these latest figures this would represent a 25% increase in Israel's Jewish population. The costs will reach at least 2 billion dollars and both Israel and world Jewry must do their utmost to accommodate these Olim whose families have been deprived of their cultural roots for the past seven decades.

I am pleased to report that the response of our community to the United Jewish Appeal and to Operation Exodus has been very gratifying. We are all either immigrants, children of immigrants, or grandchildren of immigrants. We are the fortunate ones who, by the Grace of G-D, find ourselves materially and culturally in a position to help refugees and immigrants in the same manner that those before us helped our immigrant families to settle here.

ANTI-SEMITISM

During the Canada Day weekend the Community received information that the skinheads were planning a private and secret gathering or rally at a site purportedly owned by Ian MacDonald. The Citizen has exposed Mr. MacDonald's views with regard to Jews, Zionism and Israel. This rally was organized to occur within six weeks of the Jewish Cemetery desecration and therefore we in the community viewed with some alarm the consequences of such a gathering. The Ottawa Jewish Community in concert with the Canadian Jewish Congress have been constantly monitoring the situation in concert with the appropriate police authorities. It is gratifying to note that the media and the public have reacted with disgust to these purveyors of hate, bigotry and racism. At a recent press conference (organized by B'nai Brith in Ottawa prior to the anticipated gathering), politicians and representatives of the clergy joined in the denunciation of these individuals and their supporters and expressed their solidarity with minority groups who bear the brunt of irrational vilification.

CJC discusses Jewish school funding with Ont. Lib. caucus

TORONTO — The face of education in Ontario is "changing dramatically" based on recent court and school board decisions, Murray Segal representing the Canadian Jewish Congress (CJC) told the Metro Toronto provincial Liberal caucus at a recent meeting.

Reiterating his body's long-standing belief that independent schools in Ontario should receive government funding, Segal spoke of the Elgin County court decision which no longer allows the teaching of one particular religion in public schools, and reports of funding of two Christian Mennonite schools through their public school boards.

It was Congress' contention that in order to ameliorate this gross inequity, the Ontario government should legislate to allow funding of religious independent schools which meet Ministry of Education requirements.

CJC reminded the caucus that in his 1985 report on funding of independent schools, former deputy minister of education Bernard Shapiro recommended such funding. The government has yet to respond.

Segal reported that the caucus, chaired by Brad Nixon, M.P.P. for York Mills, gave his group "a sympathetic hearing."

"Some members were supportive; others non-committal regarding government funding to Jewish schools," he said.

Joining Segal in the Congress delegation at the meeting were Stephen Flatt, co-chairman of its Political Liaison Committee, and Bernie Farber, CJC research director.

This was the first of a number of meetings CJC plans with caucuses prior to a provincial election which is scheduled for early September.

New Immigration Record!

According to figures released by the Jewish Agency, the month of June witnessed the highest number of immigrant arrivals (so far) this year: 12,457 people made Israel their new home, among them 11,015 from the Soviet Union. A total of 57,743 immigrants have arrived in Israel since January, 1990, including 49,989 people from the USSR.

ALIYAH FROM THE USSR (FIRST 6 MONTHS OF 1990)

JANUARY	4,836
FEBRUARY	5,706
MARCH	7,077
APRIL	10,600
MAY	10,293
JUNE	11,015
TOTAL	49,989

Immigration is expected to soar in the coming months. At least 15,000 are expected in July. A record number of 1,400 immigrants arrived on July 2, 1990, alone.

Finland Route Finally Open!

The Finnish government gave the go-ahead for transit flights of Soviet Jews and said it trusted Israel would not settle immigrants in the occupied territories. Weekly flights will begin early next week.

SHALOM AND WELCOME

Delegates to the Annual Assembly of the Jewish Agency for Israel welcome Soviet immigrants arriving at Ben Gurion Airport on an El Al flight from Eastern Europe on June 26. The annual assembly, attended by a delegation of Canadian leaders, dealt with the massive Soviet Aliyah and the Operation Exodus Campaign.

Jewish Agency Budget to Increase by $134 Million (U.S.)

The Jewish Agency Assembly last week, approved a $134 million addition to its $640 million budget for 1990/91 (includes $34 million for Project Renewal). The budget increase was deemed necessary, since the original budget was based on 70,000 and not on the anticipated 150,000 olim. As only $25 million out of the $134 million supplement will be covered by other sources, the Agency still faces a deficit of $109 million. The UJA and the Keren Hayesod will be asked to increase their share of Operation Exodus in order to cover the deficit. No final decision to this end has yet been made.

New Payment Scheme to Cut Long Queues

Instead of having to wait endless hours outside absorption offices in order to receive their basket of services, a new immigrant family of three will be receiving NIS 5,250 of their NIS 22,000 absorption basket directly at the airport. Upon leaving the airport terminal, the family will receive NIS 750 in cash and a bank cheque worth NIS 4,500. The remainder will be transferred monthly to their bank accounts.

Arabs Oppose Aliyah

According to a poll of 1,034 Israeli Arabs, 79.7 per cent said they opposed Soviet Jewish immigration. The reasons they gave were either national or economic. Another finding is that 44.8 per cent opposed a joint Arab-Jewish political list whereas 30.6 per cent were in favour. Lastly, 26 per cent believed the intifada will cross the green line in contrast to 36.7 per cent who did not share the same opinion and 37.2 who had no opinion at all. The poll, was conducted by the East Jerusalem weekly, Usbu al Jadid, published on July 1.

New Immigrants in Tel Aviv Need Not Pay Parking Tickets

For the time being new immigrants in Tel Aviv need not pay their parking tickets if they can prove that their traffic offences resulted from incomprehension of the Hebrew language (signs, notice boards) and unfamiliarity with Israeli traffic rules. In the coming days, Tel Aviv Municipality will embark upon a massive advertising campaign, in Russian, which will explain existing traffic regulations to immigrant drivers. Once this is done, new immigrants, will no longer be exempt from paying their tickets.

From Soup to Nuts

By Donna Karlin

After many requests for an additional column on our summer's favourite pastime, barbecuing, I thought I'd share these recipes with you. After all, it's the sauces and marinades that impart the special flavours into the meat, fish and chicken we grill. The combination of sauce along with the smoke it forms when it drips onto the hot coals makes this the type of food that's hard to forget!

Hot Honey Rub

1/4 cup prepared horseradish 2 tsp. soy sauce
1 tsp. Hungarian hot paprika 2 tsp. honey
Combine all ingredients in a bowl. Mash until smooth. Wonderful for chicken. Makes 1/3 cup.

Sesame Ginger Marinade

4 large cloves garlic, crushed 2 scallions, chopped
2 tsp. grated fresh ginger 1/2 tsp. crushed hot peppers
2 Tbsp. sugar 2 Tbsp. toasted sesame seeds
2 Tbsp. peanut oil 6 Tbsp. soy sauce
Combine all ingredients in a bowl. Great for beef and lamb. Makes about 1-1/4 cups.

Fine Fish Marinade

1/2 cup dry white wine 1 small white onion, minced
1/2 cup soy sauce 1 clove garlic, crushed
1/4 cup water 1/8 tsp. hot pepper sauce
2 Tbsp. light brown sugar 1/4 tsp. ground pepper
Combine all ingredients in a bowl. Wonderful for chicken, lamb and fish. Makes 1-1/2 cups.

Georgia Peach Sauce

1 medium onion, finely chopped 1/4 cup cider vinegar
1 cup peach preserves 1/4 cup Worcestershire sauce
1 Tbsp. ketchup 1 tsp. dry mustard
1/4 cup brown sugar 1/4 tsp. hot pepper sauce
1 tsp. Hungarian sweet paprika
Combine all ingredients in medium saucepan. Heat to boiling. Reduce heat. Simmer, uncovered, for 10 minutes. Great for chicken. Makes 2-1/3 cups.

Amish BBQ Sauce

2 Tbsp. pareve margarine 1 cup molasses
1 onion, finely chopped 1 cup ketchup
2 cloves garlic, minced 2 tsp. chili powder
Juice of 1 orange (reserve rind) Pinch ground cloves
1 Tbsp. softened raisins 1 tsp. Dijon mustard
2 Tbsp. cider vinegar 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
2 Tbsp. oil 2 tsp. crushed red peppers
Grated rind of 1 orange 1/2 tsp. salt
Melt margarine in medium saucepan over medium-low heat. Add the onion and cook 1 minute. Add garlic and cook 4 minutes. Do not brown. Meanwhile combine the orange juice with the raisins, vinegar and oil in processor or blender. Process until smooth. Add this along with the remaining ingredients to the saucepan. Heat to boiling; reduce heat. Simmer uncovered for 15 minutes. A great sauce for chicken. Makes about 3 cups.

Toby Brooks' efforts for battered women recognized

As part of the Police Week ceremonies, Chief Thomas Flanagan, S.C., of the Ottawa Police Department presented an award to Toby Brooks and Interval House of Ottawa-Carleton for their efforts on behalf of battered women.

The award recognized Toby Brooks' nearly 14 years of work at Interval House and, more particularly, the progress she has made over those years to improve the way police officers deal with domestic disputes.

In making the presentation, Chief Flanagan noted that, when he first became a policeman, domestic disputes were very low in the scale of importance, but that, because of groups such as Interval House, the police now realize threats to a woman in the home are just as serious as those in the street.

The Chief said that Toby is one of those people who had brought about this change, and that her efforts showed individual citizens can make a difference.

In her talks at several synagogues and to other Jewish groups, Toby has pointed out that, sadly, battered women are found throughout the Jewish community too.

Evelyn Greenberg being honored at Sept. Hadassah-WIZO dinner

By Lynn Gillman

Exemplary volunteer Evelyn Greenberg will be honoured by Ottawa Hadassah-WIZO at a gala dinner on Tuesday, September 11 at Machzikei Hadas Synagogue.

The organization will pay tribute to the professional musician and University of Ottawa lecturer, whose dedication to worthwhile causes has earned her admiration and respect in both the Jewish and general communities.

Evelyn, nee Feldman, was born in Ottawa to the late Sally and Israel Feldman. Her mother, a longtime member of Hadassah-WIZO, served with distinction as president of the Mollie Sachs Chapter.

The honoree's introduction to volunteerism began at Carleton University when she was chosen to serve as a representative on the Students' Council.

Following her graduation with a Bachelor of Commerce and subsequent marriage to lawyer Irving Greenberg, she withdrew from the workforce, but continued to be active on the music scene, along with increased involvement in volunteer work.

Among her impressive list of accomplishments is the founding of the Ottawa Branch of the Canada-Israel Cultural Foundation (CICF) in 1975, through which she has been responsible for many highly successful cultural exchanges between Canada and Israel.

As well, she has held a variety of positions with the

Evelyn Greenberg

National Council of Jewish Women (NCJW); co-chaired 'Operation Faceit', a fundraising campaign in support of Hillel Lodge; and served as co-chair of the Vaad's gala celebrating Israel's 40th Anniversary at the NAC in 1988.

One of her most satisfying endeavours has been the ongoing success of a music program she established for hospitals and homes for the aged. She still performs on a regular basis at Hillel Lodge, Elisabeth Bruyere Hospital and Central Park Lodge, among others.

Long active in the arts community, in 1969 she founded the National Arts Centre Orchestra (NACOA) and served as its first president. In 1975 she formed the NACOA Tour Program, which has opened the way for her to lead groups of music lovers to arts festivals around the globe.

Greenberg currently shares her time between the University of Ottawa's Department of Music, where she teaches and the University's Alumni and Development office where she is a development officer.

Evelyn and her husband, Irving, have three children: Peter married to Laurie (nee Sherman); Michael and Leslie.

September is WIZO month, during which the organization will focus on two of WIZO's many projects — Hadassim and Nahalal Schools.

The community is invited to attend the dinner. Anyone wishing further information should contact the Ottawa Hadassah-WIZO office at 728-3784.

Community Helps in Sending Children to Camp

By Beverly Grostern
Volunteer Coordinator

As always our community has responded enthusiastically to a request for help.

In early spring, Jewish Social Services Agency approached local synagogues in the hope that they would offer help to outfit children of newly arrived immigrants who were going to overnight camp for the first time.

The already limited financial resources of the new arrivals would have made the purchase of their children's camp equipment a difficult task.

Extremely generous were the responses of our synagogues. Our thanks to the following for their financial donations: Beth Shalom West Men's Club, Beth Shalom Sisterhood, Temple Israel Synagogue, Agudath Israel Sisterhood, Young Israel Congregation and Machzikei Hadas Sisterhood.

We would also like to acknowledge and thank Adath Shalom and members of Machzikei Hadas for their financial contributions and donations of camping equipment. Many individuals from the community also came forward and to them we owe a thank you as well.

Ralph Kassie and Irving Rivers made possible the purchase of sleeping and duffle bags at an affordable price.

Special thanks to students of Hillel Academy who published a school newspaper, the profits of which also went to this project.

As a result of all these very generous contributions, six area children of recent immigrants have been able to reap the benefits of a first overnight camp experience. The children, ranging in age from ten to fourteen years, originally from the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia and Poland, are now enjoying the fresh air and a Jewish milieu due to the generosity of Camp B'nai Brith.

To all of you who have helped — THANK YOU!

Although I have given myself the summer season off where Commentary is concerned, I just had to take these few lines to urge you to make sure to visit the exhibition "A Coat of Many Colours" at the Museum of Civilization in Hull. It is excellent!

Dead Sea yields up ropes possibly dating to 250BCE

Pickled by the briny waters, anchor ropes found last year on the shores of the Dead Sea have for the first time provided scientific evidence of boat activity in antiquity on the inhospitable inland sea.

Carbon 14 tests at the Weizmann Institute have dated the ropes to approximately 250 BCE.

Although anchor stones have been found in the past in the Dead Sea, never before have they been found linked to rope which, being organic, can be dated by Carbon 14 testing.

The find was made by members of Kibbutz Ein Gedi. The high salinity of the Dead Sea waters had preserved the ropes for some 2,300 years.

The Dead Sea has not yet yielded any ancient boats, but its waters have far greater preservative qualities than the Kinneret, where the so-called "Jesus Boat," a 2,000 year-old fishing vessel, was found buried in mud three years ago.

Poor visibility thus far has prevented any serious attempt at underwater archeology in the Dead Sea. In the past, a foreign archeological team on the Jordanian side of the water claimed to have spotted the remains of Sodom at the bottom of the sea. The steadily receding level of the waters has raised hopes among archeologists that an intact boat may one day be found.

Despite the high temperatures that beset the region much of the year — at 400 metres below sea level the Dead Sea is the lowest point on earth — there is considerable historical evidence attesting to its function as a major trade artery.

The Nabateans, who controlled the eastern shore of the lake in antiquity, were known to have extracted bitumen from the water and traded it to Egypt, where it was used in embalming.

Greek scientists examined the peculiar properties of the sea, whose buoyancy makes drowning difficult. Navigation on the sea is known to have developed during the Hellenistic and Roman periods. Vespasian's ships pursued Jews fleeing across the sea during the Great Revolt in 66-70 CE. The 5th century CE Madaba map in Jordan depicts two ships sailing on the Dead Sea, one south-bound with wheat and one north-bound with salt. Crusader accounts also describe boat traffic on the sea.

Dr. Arie Nissenbaum of the Weizmann Institute, who did the dating with Israel Carmi, suggested that the anchors may date back to a historic naval battle that took place on the Dead Sea in 312 BCE. Nissenbaum, who is an expert on the Dead Sea, said that King Antiochus of Syria wanted to establish a monopoly on the collection of bitumen and was defeated "in the world's first oil war."

The Bellarosa Connection

By Saul Bellow
Penguin, 102 pages, $7.95 (paper)

Billy Rose was a legendary American show business figure (1899-1966) born into a poor New York family. He rose to fame and fortune as early as 1920 when he wrote the lyrics for the song, Ain't Nature Grand.

By the age of 24, Rose was earning $100,000 a year as a songwriter.

His career skyrocketed; he wrote the lyrics for about 400 songs, bought theatres and married five wives. Fanny Brice was the first, in 1930.

Israel top priority

A philanthropist who considered Israel top priority, he donated several of his paintings and sculptures to the Israel Museum in Jerusalem.

These are the facts which Nobel Laureate Saul Bellow transforms as he attempts to capture what he thinks drove the man, Billy Rose, a relatively secretive person, who did not want to be recognized on every street corner.

Longstanding relationship

The yarn, told in the first person, is based on a longstanding relationship of an immigrant, Harry Fonstein and his wife, Sorella, with the narrator, a New Jersey Jew, who married a Wasp and is now a widower.

He is also founder of the Mnemosyne Institute in Philadelphia, a foundation which focuses on the importance of memory, "because if you work in memory, which is life itself, there is no retirement, except in death."

Major connection

The narrator's friendship with the Fonsteins becomes his major connection with his Jewish past.

Just who is Harry Fonstein? He is a man who was rescued from the Nazi maw by an underground operation masterminded by Billy Rose.

Fonstein wants to meet Billy personally, to thank him, shake his hand, but Bill refuses.

Sorella his wife arranges a meeting in Jerusalem. She is a wily woman whose girth matches her cunning and she actually tries to blackmail Billy.

The narrator-widower just happens to be in Jerusalem when the famous elusive meeting is about to take place. It does, but with Sorella only.

"Maybe the most interesting thing about Harry Fonstein is that he would never meet Billy Rose," Bellow writes. Despite his wealth and fame he would be an inadequate counterexample. He could never measure up to the victim, the survivor, Harry Fonstein.

Complaint upheld in charge against Globe

TORONTO — The Toronto Globe and Mail was careless if not insensitive in placing a photo of a group of religious Jews in Tel Aviv above a front-page story about Israeli troops shooting Palestinians in Gaza, the Ontario Press Council says in upholding a complaint from a reader.

"The juxtaposition of the headline and the picture is extremely offensive," Howard N. Shuster of Toronto wrote. "There is no relationship whatsoever between the picture and the article, but the manner in which the picture appears suggests that the spiritual leader and his aides are connected with the violence in Gaza.

"Many Jews are extremely sensitive about Israel's current role in the Middle East and, of course, due to the long history of discrimination Jews have suffered, they are sensitive about any negative portrayal of Jews. Your picture only contributes to their anxieties."

The story, published April 20, 1989, was headlined, "Israeli troops shoot 23 in Gaza as pre-Passover violence flares." Immediately above it was an Associated Press newsphoto of a group of bearded Jews with the caption "Spiritual leader Rabbi Eliezer Schach (centre), with aides, visits a bereaved family in Tel Aviv before Passover begins."

The Globe and Mail, describing the picture as the best available that day, said its concern was that the caption told the reader almost nothing about the photo. It added that its photo desk had tried unsuccessfully to get amplification from AP and that steps had been taken to ensure captions are better written.

Explaining why the photo and story had been played as they were, the newspaper said it has a policy that items that have something in common should be grouped for ease of readership.

"On the day in question, that story and that picture were the only things in the paper that referred to occurrences in Israel," it said, adding that it didn't think the average Globe and Mail reader would consider the two events directly connected.

"Your picture only contributes to their anxieties"

Shuster, said the juxtaposition seemed to identify Judaism with the actions of Israeli troops. And, although the story referred to Gaza and the picture to Tel Aviv, he doubted most Canadians could locate various parts of Israel or the occupied territories.

Text to the adjudication:

Howard Shuster of Toronto complained that the Globe and Mail, in placing a newsphoto of a group of religious Jews in Tel Aviv above an April 29, 1989, page 1 story about the shooting by Israeli troops of Palestinians in Gaza showed a lack of sensitivity because the two were unconnected.

The newspaper, while admitting the photo caption was inadequate in merely saying the Jews were visiting the bereaved, said the picture was the best available from the wire services that day and, because both the photo and story were from Israel, it seemed logical to publish them together.

The Ontario Press Council agrees that readers might be led to assume the photo and story were somehow related and believes the juxtaposition reflected carelessness if not insensitivity.

The complaint is upheld. Reprinted from the Citizen, July 5, 1990 edition.

Adath Shalom Congregation

invites you to join us for High Holy Days Services

and all year round

We are a small, friendly, havurah-style congregation affiliated with the Conservative movement. Many of our own members take part in conducting the Shabbat and holiday services and in discussing the weekly Torah reading. For the High Holy Days and at other times during the year, visiting rabbis and rabbinical students complement our member-led services. In everything that we do at Adath Shalom, men and women participate equally.

From September to June, Shabbat services are held each Saturday morning, starting at 9:45 a.m. in the library of Greenbank Public School in Nepean — on Greenbank Road, 1 mile south of Baseline. During the summer months, services are held in some of our members' homes. For special occasions and family simchas, larger facilities are also available to us.

Adath Shalom offers its members an opportunity to acquire new skills and knowledge from one another — in prayers, rituals, and study, in special holiday activities, and in helping to maintain and strengthen our growing congregation.

Children are especially welcomed at Adath Shalom. Many of our youth participate in parts of the services, and we have celebrated joyful bar-mitzvahs and bat-mitzvahs together. Childcare is provided and a variety of programs for children are organized throughout the year.

Our congregation has a strong interest in Jewish study. Together we examine the meanings of prayers and rituals and learn about holidays and festivals. Study groups and Shabbat weekends are led by invited scholars.

Seats are available for the High Holy Day services. Our services will be led by Rabbi Rudy Adler, Rabbi Emeritus of Congregation Ohev Shalom, Orlando, Florida. Rabbi Adler, who has visited Adath Shalom several times in the past, is a spiritual leader of exceptional warmth and enthusiasm. Cantorial leadership is to be provided by a group of our own very well rehearsed and talented members.

Payment for seats for the High Holy Days may be applied to the cost of an annual membership, and there is as well a special discount on first-year memberships. Associate memberships are available to members of any other congregation. There is no charge at all to university students.

Adath Shalom has been a participating member of the Ottawa Jewish Community Council since 1978. Our membership has been increasing steadily over the past several years, and our aim is to continue to grow, in numbers and in spirit. We invite you to come and grow with us.

For additional information please call Harvey Goldberg at 825-5219, Joel Yan at 224-4560, or Agath Shalom's 24-hour message line at 228-0570.

Valerie Good selected as ORT '90 Woman of the Year awardee

Ottawa Women's ORT held its Annual Closing Dinner and Awards Evening on May 22 at Machzikei Hadas Congregation.

While all four local chapters reported a highly successful year, Chavarot Chapter received the highest award for outstanding programs and fundraisers which realized a total of over $9,850 from a Chinese Auction, Fall Tea and Fashion Show, Xmas Gift Wrapping at Carlingwood Mall, Mother's Day Brunch Box project, and the sale of Entertainment '90 books.

Special recognition

Chavarot members singled out for special recognition included Andrea Borer, Ellen Chernoy, Beverly Cogan-Gluzman, Debra Davis, Hedy Gutman, Marlene Hoffman and Karen Osterer.

Shalom Chapter reported over $1500 raised through a Phantom Tea and Eilat Chapter brought in an unprecedented $1800 from a Purim Phantom Tea.

A Kugel Brunch hosted by Eretz Chapter produced $1200, and a Spring Tea held at the home of Rose Litwack an additional $1200. The chapter also held a lively bingo for Hillel Lodge residents at Chanukah.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation to Valerie Good of the Woman of the Year Award, the organization's highest honor.

A member of Eretz Chapter for over 30 years, Mrs. Good

has served several terms as president and has been a guiding force in the chapter for many years.

The evening also included the presentation of a plaque to Lily Penso, 1989 Woman of the Year, for her unwavering devotion to the organization.

Deeply saddened

Ottawa Women's ORT was deeply saddened by the passing this year of longtime devotee Muriel Levine, a founding member of Eilat Chapter who helped bring ORT to Ottawa in 1948. Mrs. Levine pioneered many successful fundraisers and was an important voice on ORT's Regional Advisory Committee.

The local organization hosted a tea in Mrs. Levine's memory on Wednesday, August 8 at the residence of the ambassador of Israel to Canada and Mrs. Gur-Arieh. Proceeds of the tea will be directed toward the Muriel Levine Project in Israel Fund.

The evening concluded with a fashion show by Tiffany's Fashions modelled by members of all ORT chapters followed by a draw for door prizes donated by Janda Jem. Top Banana and Tiffany's Fashions.

Ottawa Women's ORT President Lynn Levitan chaired for the evening.

Something's Wrong When Your Child Knows The One On The Left Better Than The One On The Right

At the Star of David Hebrew School your child will become as familiar with Jewish traditions as he or she is with modern ones. Ours is a complete program, from Kindergarten to Grade 7, offering instruction in customs, Jewish law, Ivrit, ethics, holidays, Holocaust studies, Bar and Bat Mitzvah.

Situated at Machzikei Hadas Synagogue, Star of David is convenient to Ottawa South, Ottawa Centre, Orleans, Rothwell Heights and Rockcliffe Park.

Classes are held Mondays and Wednesdays, 4:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. — Never on Sunday! For further information call Lisa Cogan 237-4900 8:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m.

Dorothy Karp, Lillian Saslove to share memories of farm life

From 1910 until 1951 Abraham and Frieda Marcovitch farmed near the Bowesville Road in Gloucester. Theirs was the only Jewish family in a closely knit farm community that supplied fresh produce for the Ottawa market.

Dairy products, fresh vegetables and picnic meals were provided for the many Sunday visitors to the farm.

During the 1930s and '40s the Marcovitchs rental cottages provided a summer holiday away from the city for those who could afford $8.00 per week. Immigrant families could easily reach this haven via the Ottawa bus line which cruised the Bowesville Road as part of its Sunday afternoon excursion.

Unfortunately the entire community dispersed in 1951 when the land was expropriated for the building of Uplands Airport.

Abraham and Frieda raised eight children in Beausville. Their daughter, Lillian Marcovitch Saslove and her daughter Dorothy Saslove Karp, retain many memories and anecdotes about life on the farm which they will share with members of the Ottawa Jewish Abraham and Frieda Marcovitch on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary, Beausville, Ontario 1947.

Historical Society on Sunday, August 19 at 7:00 p.m. in the Assembly Hall of the Jewish Community Centre.

The community is invited to attend this third in a series of talks about local Jewish history.

Translators offered excellent Ont. Arts Council opportunity

TORONTO — Calling all translators. The Ontario Arts Council (OAC) now has a program to assist literary translators of fiction, drama and poetry.

The $100,000 pilot project is designed to assist in the translation of the works of contemporary authors, from Canada and abroad, writing in languages other than French or English, OAC Executive Director Norman Walford announced recently.

"There are talented writers living and working in Ontario whose first language is neither English nor French," Mr. Walford said. "This pilot program offers them and international writers a chance to have their works translated and read by a larger audience."

Applications must be made by a Canadian-owned, Ontario-based book publisher on behalf of the translator. Grants will be paid directly to the translator. Translators must be Canadian citizens or landed immigrants living in Canada.

Contemporary adult fiction, poetry and drama previously published or in manuscript form will be considered.

"Because of the language barrier, Canadians are not often exposed to great contemporary literary works from various cultures," Literature Officer Lorraine Filyer said. "The translation program will enrich Ontario's literary library of authors and poets from around the world and in our own province."

Applications, due September 14, 1990 and January 21, 1991, are adjudicated by a panel of independent judges who assess each request by established criteria.

"Through the translation program, The Ontario Arts Council continues to encourage and promote literary excellence and recognizes the valuable contribution translators make to the artistic life of Ontario," Mr. Walford said.

Two Israeli institutions benefit from local youth group project

By Ilana Friedman
In January of this year, Tikun Olam — the fundraising arm of United Synagogue Youth — raised over $500 through a special formal dance just for teens.

The "Black-tie Affair", as it was billed, was a great success both as a fun party for all who attended and as a very worthwhile charitable project. Recently the youngsters of USY, based at Ottawa's Agudath Israel Congregation, elected to contribute the proceeds to two worthwhile Israeli institutions — Magen David Adom and the ALYN Hospital in Jerusalem.

ALYN is a very special institution for physically handicapped children, whose dedicated staff provides both resident and out-patient care to crippled children from all over Israel.

Magen David Adom (the "Red Star of David"), is Israel's version of the Red Cross, which provides Israel with most of its emergency care including blood donor centres, first-aid stations and ambulances.

The group is particularly proud of the fact that this USY donation will make possible the purchase of a respirator unit for an ambulance.

List of good eateries in Israeli available

Like everyone else, the folks at the Israel Government Tourist Office in Toronto are inordinately interested in food (and how to avoid it, or at least how to ingest it without actually consuming any calories, surrounded as they are by brochures picturing lithe Israeli girls sporting tiny Götter bikinis).

However, the scenario changes once office staffers are actually visiting Israel: the Jewish motherland beckons with that familiar age-old echo, "Eat, eat, you look so thin!" And, eat they do.

The staff has decided to go public with a restaurant listing available upon request, covering primarily Jerusalem and Tel Aviv, and including short descriptions of the menus.

Israel, of course, has its share of fast food joints. However, Israelis and not just tourists — especially those who have picked up sophisticated eating habits abroad — are demanding standards with more variety and imagination in their dining-out experiences.

And these days in Israel certainly find what they're looking for!

With a population that has immigrated to Israel from over 100 diverse countries, the gastronomic experience today offers a blend of dishes from Austria, Hungary, China, Poland, Romania, Germany, Bulgaria, India, Yemen, Turkey, America, France, Italy, Greece, Morocco, Russia, Vietnam, Japan, Brazil, etc. Yehuda Shen, director of the IGTO Canada, raves about Toronto's restaurants, but complains, "You people sure don't make a proper falafel".

For more information and an Israeli restaurant list, contact the IGTO at 180 Bloor Street West, Suite 700, Toronto, M5S 2V6.

PROGRAM SUITABLE FOR MATURE TEENS AND ADULTS

The West Bank: Some personal impressions

By Toby and David Brooks

The West Bank is not first choice for Jews going to the Middle East. As tourists in Israel, we had always avoided going there. The West Bank was not the place to learn about Jewish life and history, and we were clearly not welcome. Moreover, we accepted Abba Eban's view that Israel would be more secure without the Territories.

This visit was different; we did go to the West Bank. What made this visit different was that, as a result of David's work in international development, we were invited by researchers to review projects located at Bir Zeit University in Ramallah and An-Najah University in Nablus.

Contact with the researchers was fine. The universities themselves are closed, but we were welcomed into the professors' homes, and the research continues as best it can under the circumstances.

At the same time, we got a glimpse of life on the West Bank, and it is this that we want to write about. Two general impressions stand out most clearly in our minds: the nature of the occupation, and the nature of the Intifada.

The Occupation

Shortly after crossing into the West Bank, tension mounts and one is aware of the differences between the occupiers and the occupied. Put bluntly, it is obvious that the West Bank is under a full-blown military occupation, subject to all the abuses — sometimes authorized; sometimes not — that characterize military operations elsewhere in the world.

Israeli soldiers are evident everywhere — on rooftops and behind barricades, at patrol stations and in buildings. Roads are blocked-off for no apparent reason, and often one must take circuitous routes to get from place to place.

Checkpoints are also common, and the exchanges between the guards and our companions were curt, almost abusive. Is this the norm? We cannot say, but the soldiers could not help noticing that our car had a chequered keffiyeh prominently draped across the dashboard. Clearly visible to people on the street, the keffiyeh was our protection against stones.

Concertina (coils of barbed wire) enclose areas where trouble has erupted in the past. Almost everywhere are found stones or marks where stones have hit a wall or a window. People look, and act, scared — hurrying from place to place, always aware that trouble could break out, and rocks and tear gas start flying.

Of course, the Jewish settlements in the Territories have a different appearance. The buildings are new and clustered together for protection, rather than old and free-standing, as in Arab villages. The settlements are provided with modern services that Arab villages do not generally receive. Some vehicles have their windscreens covered with heavy mesh wire.

Not so evident, but increasingly well documented, are the human rights violations. Both Israeli and Palestinian lawyers have been gathering evidence of cases in which military personnel have failed to observe Israeli law, or the IDF's own orders, or even the Defence Emergency Regulations, enacted by the British during the Mandate, which the military sometimes chooses to enforce. The record is sadly corroborated by almost daily reports in The Jerusalem Post and the courts martial of both regular and reserve soldiers.

The Intifada

So much has been written about stonethrowing or other ways of attacking Israelis that one tends to think that is all there is to the Intifada. In reality, the Intifada is more complicated.

More than anything else, the Intifada is breaking the informal bonds that were built to link the West Bank to Israel, on the one side, and to Jordan, on the other. It is going on to create the framework that will be necessary with the advent of whatever form of government is eventually established.

An internal economy is being created — not a terribly strong economy, but a going one nevertheless. Lots of signs promote the purchase of West Bank rather than imported goods. Fewer people depend upon Israeli income. Local governments are creating the structures to provide social and protective services.

Also, we were told, new social structures are coming to replace the traditional ones that prevailed in the past. Certainly, compared with other places we have visited in the Middle East, there are fewer strictures on women, and young people take more prominent roles in conversations.

It appears that the Intifada has created a people, mainly Muslim but with a significant Christian minority, that now sees itself as a nation. For example, restaurants remain closed as a way of showing respect to those who have been killed. To indicate support for the Intifada and opposition to the occupation, stores open only on specific schedules set by leaders of the Intifada. (Special extended hours exist for bakeries and prescription drug stores.)

True, these rules may be enforced by an element of terror, but they are the kinds of rules that are likely to be created by a people that is self-consciously demonstrating its solidarity.

It is hard to avoid comparison with the period of the Mandate. Then too there were those in more or less open warfare against the British, but the far more significant part of the activity went into the creation of structures that, in 1948, became part of the local and national governments of Israel.

A Final Impression

Ironically, the conclusion to our impressions came not on the West Bank but back in Israel, when, at the corner of King George and Rambam Streets in Jerusalem, we stopped to watch a demonstration. A tourist asked what was going on, and Toby said that it was a demonstration against the occupation of the Territories.

Now, one of the things that's so endearing about Israelis is their lack of inhibitions. A passing Israeli woman, overhearing the reply, stopped and retorted: "It's not an occupation; it's a liberation". When we in turn asked her, "Why do people who are being liberated throw stones at the soldiers?" "Because," she replied crisply, "they're not liberated enough."

We did not expect things to be good on the West Bank. Having read David Grossman's Yellow Wind, we understood that Israeli occupation has never been easy or gentle. However, it is one thing to read about the problems, another to see them personally. And we were quite taken aback by the uncharacteristic failure of many Israelis to be honest about what is happening.

Whatever the origins of the current stalemate, Israel is now in an impossible situation. The sooner she finds a viable way out of the Territories, the better!

Responso

By Dr. Maureen Molot

David and Toby Brooks have written an article which expresses their deep felt concern about Israel's occupation of the West Bank. I appreciate their worries about continuing Israeli control of that region and share many of them. However, I am troubled by a piece that concentrates on what was experienced and ignores the complicated context within which the situation must be analyzed. All too often articles ignore two critical points: (a) why and how Israel came to control the West Bank; and (b) the inability to settle the Israeli-Palestinian issue without progress on the wider issue of peace between Israel and its numerous Arab neighbours.

There are a number of statements in the Brooks' article which I find troubling. At the outset I am surprised by their view that the West Bank, also known as Judea and Samaria, is not the place to learn about Jewish life and history.

In fact, the West Bank encompasses a substantial portion of the most historically significant section of ancient "Eretz Israel" to which Jews were returning even before the rise of modern Zionism. The West Bank is where King David was crowned. It contains Hebron and the tomb of the patriarchs. It was the site of the ancient Kingdoms of Judea and Israel. While the significance this history should have in determining Israel's approach to its difficulties with the Palestinians is one aspect of the current debate in Israel today, no purpose is served by distorting history.

The authors state that "tension mounts" when one crosses into the West Bank and that it is "obvious that the West Bank is under a full blown military occupation, subject to all the abuses — sometimes authorized; sometimes not — that characterize military operations elsewhere in the world." From where do these statements come? Are the authors experts on military occupation? Israel has, in spite of some distressing exceptions to its high standards, a substantially better record than most, if not all, occupying powers the world over. In fact the reason for the high degree of awareness of the unfortunate — although hardly routine — abuses which have occurred in the occupied territories, is that there is a free press — both Israeli and local, and open access to most parts of the territories. While there are constraints which are a part of Israel's security measures, this reality has not in any way effectively hampered the authors' access. Nor have numerous professional journalists been hindered in their work in a fashion which is in any way comparable with the severe restrictions normally applied to members of the press throughout the Arab world (including, for example, Egypt and Jordan usually regarded as "moderate" Arab states).

The authors refer to roads being blocked off for "no apparent reason," and yet they go on to state that there was a keffiyah (Arab head-dress) draped across the dash-board of their car "...clearly visible to people on the street... (as) protection against stones." Thus they have shown that there is a legitimacy in road blocks and other measures taken to maintain security. What of the individual unescorted by "friendly" Palestinians who lacks this keffiyah as signal and whose car is stoned or firebombed? Wouldn't this person be pleased that the Israel Defence forces (IDF) are present and have blocked off dangerous areas to protect the public — be they Palestinian or Israeli?

The authors are correct in their statement that due to the prominence of reporting of stone throwing "one tends to think that is all there is to the Intifada... in reality... (it) is more complicated." The Intifada involves substantial use of other violence, such as extensive molotov cocktails, stabbings and attacks on civilian buses driving through Israel. It is this arduous and painful reality which confronts the Israeli soldier and civilian daily.

The authors, when focussing upon the Palestinian "rules" of the Intifada, state "true, these rules may be enforced by an element of terror" but this seems to be acceptable to them. One must wonder if they are including countless ruthless murders, rapes and violent assaults upon Palestinians by other Palestinians as "elements of terror?" At present, the internal fighting between different Palestinian factions has resulted in a significant and rising death toll. In the past six months, this internal fighting has accounted for roughly one half of all deaths and injuries of Palestinians. Clearly the authors, who have managed to make a very critical assessment of Israeli wrongdoing — while muted in their disapproval of the violent nature of the Intifada, are applying a double standard: Israel can do no right, the Palestinians, even when resorting to terrorism, can do no wrong.

The comparison with the British Mandate is also flawed. The goal of the underground movements, like the Haganah and the Palmach, was not the ultimate destruction of the British Empire or the people of the United Kingdom. Rather, it was for the British to fulfill their obligations under the mandate they received from the League of Nations, or failing that, to leave the area altogether. The goal of the Intifada, certainly now that it has been manipulated by forces external to the territories (the PLO and other extremist groupings), is the complete destruction of the State of Israel, whether as a result of the strategy of phases, or in a direct assault upon its population and territory (including the pre-1967 areas).

There is an element of disappointment in reading the Brooks' article. While I applaud their commitment to participate in the current debate over a much-needed solution to the Middle East conflict, I am distressed that they have presented an analysis devoid of context and, therefore, as a result, somewhat facile. I am upset that they are prepared to accept blanket condemnation of Israel while, at the same time, exonerating the Palestinians of all guilt (including responsibility for terrorist acts), and totally ignore the wider conflict that Israel faces in the region.

Unique October tour to Israel features Jerusalem and south

Once again this year, Agudath Israel Congregation is planning a unique tour of Israel led by their program director and hazzan sheini, Danny Friedman.

The 13-night tour follows the great success of last November's trip and includes luxury five-star hotel accommodations and many special tour features designed to be of interest to veteran tourists to Israel as well as to first-timers.

According to Friedman, the itinerary is particularly attractive in that it minimizes the tumult of frequent changing of hotels, and features the magnificent southern half of the country which few tours include.

Underground cities

In addition to the Jerusalem, Tel Aviv and Dead Sea areas, participants will tour the newly discovered underground cities of the Shefela region; spend a night and a day in Beersheba, the "Gateway to the Negev" and now Israel's fourth largest city; visit the Ben Gurion home and gravesight in Kibbutz Sde Boker; marvel at the breathtaking Negev landscape in places such as Zin Canyon, Avdat, and Mizpeh Ramon; and enjoy several magnificent days of touring and relaxing in the area of Eilat, the incomparable Red Sea paradise.

Licensed tour guide

American born Danny Friedman came to Ottawa from Jerusalem where, as a partner in the Archaeological Seminar, he designed and implemented educational programs on the archaeology of Israel. He is a government licensed tour guide who over the years has shared his enthusiasm for the Holy Land with thousands of tourists, students and pilgrims. Many Ottawans have enjoyed his public lectures on Judaism, Jerusalem and archaeology.

The tour is open to members of the congregation as well as the community at large at the price of $2699, Canadian — including transportation to and from Mirabel Airport and the flight from Eilat to Jerusalem.

An information meeting for interested parties will take place at Agudath Israel on Thursday evening, August 30 at 7:30 p.m. The response to date has been enthusiastic, and space is limited.

For further information contact Danny at the synagogue (728-3501) or at home (729-5699).

Kosher pigs in Israel? Perhaps!

Tel Aviv (JTA) — Hog farmers in Israel, fearing they may soon be put out of business by an Orthodox-inspired bill banning the raising of pigs anywhere in the Jewish state, have come up with a novel solution to their plight.

They are considering importing and breeding babirusas, an Indonesian species of wild hog related to the pig family that chews its cud and has cloven hoofs.

According to Indonesian farmers, the meat of the little-known animal tastes exactly like the kosher pig. But as it meets the biblical requirements for kashrut, it does not come under the ban on raising pigs for pork products such as bacon and ham.

In appearance, the babirusa is taller and longer-legged than the hog, and it has a longer face.

News of an alleged "kosher pig" appears to have taken the religious establishment by surprise.

JCC Day Care Centre is one year old

By Lisa James

One year ago this month the Jewish Community Centre Child Development Unit, commonly known in the community as "the day care centre," held its first open house, amidst plumbers, painters and assorted contractors.

Today, we find it hard to believe how far we have come and how much we have done in our first year.

The Jewish Community Centre established and organized our day care (and is responsible for running it) in response to the need for a child care program which would be sensitive to the special background of our community's youngsters.

Located at 831 Broadview our day care centre contains a gym, separate rooms for toddlers and preschoolers, a full kitchen and dining room, two separate, extremely well-equipped playgrounds, as well as administrative offices and a staff room.

Instant child appeal

The decor is designed to instantly appeal to the young child, or indeed to anyone. The rooms are painted in pastels and outlined in primary colours. Cut out "clouds" hang from the ceilings. Bright toys are invitingly placed at child's eye level.

Our official opening as a day care facility licensed by the Ontario government took place on November 2, 1989, with a full contingent of dignitaries in attendance. On hand to wish us well were: Bob Chiarelli, MP, Ottawa West; Jane Giffen, representing the Ontario Ministry of Community and Social Services; Eli Rabin, president of the Jewish Community Council; Ralph Kassie, president of the Jewish Community Centre; and Arnie Vered, chairman of the Jewish Community Campus.

Early childhood educator Revital Currie shares some serious sandbox talk with JCC day care centre tots.

Our day care centre "family" are all qualified in the early childhood education field. Our team includes: Marie Stovicek, director; Lisa James, supervisor; Rosa Stone, administrator; Revital Currie, Julie Biesenthal and Francoise Vidal, early childhood educators; and Yelena Heifets, cook.

Ellie Greenberg is chairman of the day care centre committee and our very helpful representative on the Jewish Community Centre Board.

Children and staff soon became comfortable with each other. The seasons passed very quickly, with the youngsters savouring the special delights of each.

Chanukah was celebrated with special stories, songs and crafts devoted to making menorahs and dreidels.

On Tu B'Shvat some of our children visited Hillel Lodge to present "home-made" plants and spend time with the residents. The mixing of the generations was a beautiful experience, one which we look forward to repeating.

Purim was celebrated with a costume party attended by many Hamans and Esthers, and, of course, with hamantaschen served as treats. As well, youngsters from Hillel Academy's grade 6 presented a play.

For Passover our kitchen was made pesdik, and we enjoyed

Well-equipped day care playground is a child's delight.

special passover meals catered by Jack Smith.

We welcomed Shavuot with crafts devoted to making fruit baskets, and delicious blintzes fresh from our own kitchen.

In January a Parents Advisory Committee was established to facilitate closer communication between the day care staff and the parents. This committee also assisted the staff in conducting the centre's first fundraiser — appropriately, a kosher cookie sale. The money raised is being used to add to our library collection.

The Advisory Committee and the day care staff also organized a very successful open house for all the parents in April. Dr. Joel Kanigsberg spoke to the group on the problems of parenting the difficult child. This event also provided the parents with an opportunity to mingle and socialize with each other.

Important community component

One year after its opening, the Jewish Community Centre Child Development Unit has become an important, trusted component of our community structure.

The numbers speak for themselves. Our day care centre opened its doors with an enrolment of 10 children. Today we have 30 children in our care. We believe that by the time our second year begins this fall we will reach our full capacity of 39 children.

Each child is a very welcome member of the special Jewish Community Centre family. For more information on the JCC day care centre call Rosa Stone at 722-5157.

ARTS ALIVE

By Anita Dubinsky, Arts Alive Publicity Chairperson

Arts Alive enters the '90's with a stimulating program of events, November 10 and 11, at the Jewish Community Centre, 151 Chapel Street. The media, communications, and the Jewish people's place in history — yesterday and today — are the provocative subjects presented by outstanding guest speakers and musicians.

On Saturday night, November 10, Arts Alive '90 opens with Neal Gabier, film critic of PBS's Sneak Previews, CBS television writer and author of An Empire of Their Own, a fascinating description of how the Jews "invented" Hollywood.

On Sunday, November 11, at the breakfast session, Josh Beutel, editorial cartoonist with the Saint John, N.B., press, brings a new approach to combatting racism, using caricature, with a Jewish illustrator's perspective.

Sunday afternoon will feature Sylvia Gelber, prominent human rights advocate and international affairs specialist. Her recent book, No Balm in Gilead, is a revealing account of her activities in Palestine during the last years of the British mandate. Dr. Gelber takes us through history as a personal witness of a crucial era.

As well, Linda Frum of Toronto, editor of The Newsmakers, will present a rare insider's view of the journalists who give us our daily news.

Rabbi Reuven Bulka, spiritual leader of Machziki Hadas and author of many books, will stimulate the audience with his acute insights into Judaic heritage and tradition.

A spirited performance of Jewish-Spanish music and songs of Moroccan flavour, by Gerinaldo, a Montreal-based quartet, will conclude this exciting weekend on Sunday night.

Arts Alive '90, a celebration of Jewish culture and arts, provides the entire community with a variety of programs offering enlightenment and entertainment. The mammoth book sale is a traditional center of activity, as is the timely display of Judaica and gift items for sale.

The Dizengoff Cafe offers a variety of refreshments and a social corner for all. Activities for the children are sure to amuse and attract many youngsters.

Chairperson Minda Wershof and her committee have been involved with preparations for this important community highlight for many months. As November approaches, more volunteers will be urgently required. Please phone Diane at the JCC, 238-1818, if you would like to be involved.

Come to the Jewish Community Centre on November 10 and 11. Bring your family, friends and neighbours. There's something for everyone at Arts Alive '90.

Nap Kapinsky is interviewed for the JCC's Video, The Body Manager, part of a series of videos on independent senior lifestyles being produced by the JCC, called Active Choices: A Senior's Independence Program. Mr. Kapinsky, a lifelong athlete, later led the JCC's exercise class.

Seniors speak for themselves in videos

By Betty Rosenberg

Four months ago a young woman called me and said, "Your name came up as a person who might be interested in a project the Jewish Community Centre is co-ordinating, dedicated to making life easier and happier for the seniors of today and tomorrow."

Susan Richarz went on to explain that the Centre was producing a series of video films involving a group of seniors who would be willing to give of their time and do some soul-searching. They would be asked to answer some very pertinent questions concerning their feelings and their relationship with the many people and groups they interact with.

She assured me that this request was being made to other seniors in the Jewish community.

At first, the only thing I could think of was being on film. After all, my first stage appearance had taken place at the age of 6, when I appeared at the Jewish Standard Theatre with Hannah Hollander. I just knew my time had come again. Of course, I accepted the challenge.

Susan Richarz, who is our co-ordinator, writer and everything else that the project demands, deserves many kudos and a yasher koach for her efforts. She is expecting to produce her third child just about the time this production is finished.

The importance of this project, as I see it, is multifold. Personally, I felt that it made me stop and think of myself as an entity — not wife, not mother, just me and what makes me tick. It helped me put into focus the realities of my life, past, present and future. I did not always like my thoughts and tried to relay these things in the video, as I am sure that the other people involved did.

The most important aspect of the project was communicating our thoughts as seniors to other seniors across the country and to everyone interested in what the senior population thinks and wants.

In the coming years seniors will be a very powerful and growing sector of our society.

There are thousands of people who have chosen careers working with seniors. Their aim is to make these senior years more comfortable, happy and healthy. Everyone, after all, hopes one day to be a senior. These videos express how seniors themselves feel and what they want. May they encourage seniors all across the country to express what they want in their own lives. And may they help those involved with seniors to understand.

P.S. If I end up on the cutting room floor after this is over, at least I've had my hour upon the stage.

Instructional Israeli dancing starts new season September 11

By Phil Kretzmar

Over the past few years, dozens of folks in Ottawa have discovered — or re-discovered — the joys of Israeli folk dancing. They have found that it is great music, great exercise, great variety and great people. But, more than that, it's fun, energy and ruach generated by a friendly, lively and warm group of dancers.

The group — from pre-teens to pre-seniors — meets every Tuesday evening, in the gymnasium at 881 Broadview. In September, beginning Tuesday, September 11, we will be starting a new session of teaching. The format this year will be similar to previous years, with a few modifications.

There will be an introductory clinic, from 6:30 to 7:00 p.m. every week, concentrating on basic steps, to provide beginners with a sound basis from which they can progress.

Beginners teaching will be from 7:00 to 8:00 p.m., followed by a period of beginners and intermediate dances, and some intermediate teaching, between 8:00 and 8:45 p.m. This will help to integrate beginners into the group.

The end of the evening from 8:45 to 10:15 p.m., will be devoted to intermediate and advanced dancing, by request, with some advanced teaching.

This will enable the more experienced dancers to enjoy a variety of repertoire dances, old and new.

In addition, two or three workshops are planned for the year — including a couple of Tuesday evening workshops, and a weekend workshop.

Everyone is welcome, from beginners to experienced dancers. We meet every Tuesday night — whatever the weather — and afterwards we get together at a restaurant for refreshments. It really is fun. Join hands, share the energy, feel the vibes. If you would like more information, call Joanne at 225-6030.

This ever-popular community-wide event is a "must" to attend and to be involved with.

Volunteers will be needed for the weekend for a variety of tasks, from unpacking books to operating cash registers, from selling tickets to greeting guests.

If you haven't yet volunteered, call Minda Wershof (224-7073) Deborah Saginor (728-9394) or Diane Poriah (238-1818). Be sure to watch for details about the Arts Alive program in the next edition of Centrefold.

Connection 20/30 has picnic

By Diane Koven Poriah

The first annual Connection 20/30 picnic was held on Sunday, July 29 at Mississippi Lake Camping. Under blue skies, on a day made to order, we played badminton, croquet and frisbee. A valiant attempt was made at volleyball, despite a sagging net and some reluctant team members. There was swimming and boating and lounging in the sun. The Incredible Grape Toss was won "hands down" by the team of Lesley Harris (pitcher) and Elliot Finkelman (catcher) — definitely world championship material!

Amid cries for more women next year, it was generally agreed that a good time was had by all and that it was a program well worth repeating.

We Do Make a Difference

Meet Adele Simon

Introducing Roslyn Kimmel

The dreams of the future are built on the experiences of the past.

As I assume the chair of the 1991 Women's Division Campaign, I am inspired by the success of last year's fundraising effort. The hard work and dedication of over 100 volunteers raised an unprecedented $515,000.00 from the 2090 Jewish Women of Ottawa who made individual contributions to United Jewish Appeal. This amount represents 17% of the total campaign dollars raised --an incredible accomplishment!

We are fortunate to have an excellent Cabinet who make it all happen. Our 51 Cabinet Members are already busy.

The energy and enthusiasm generated at our meetings leaves no doubt as to why we are so successful year after year. With the help of the my Vice-Chairpeople, Lynda Greenberg and Bonnie Merovitz, Associate Vice-Chairs, Cally Kardash and Susan Vered, and the expertise of the Past Chairperson Vera Klein, I am confident we will continue to raise even more funds.

As we prepare for this new decade and the challenge of Operation Exodus, we must remember that we are the role models for future generations. It is our responsibility to work together to carry out our mandate as successfully in the future as has been done in the past.

To Elaine Citrome, Women's Division Newsletter Editor, Karen Zunder, Newsletter Publicity and Graphic Design, and Susan Vered, Associate Vice-Chair, Outreach and Public Relations, many thanks for compiling our premiere issue; and to every volunteer who either assists Women's Division or contributes to it, I hope you find our Newsletter an informative method of communication.

A Message From Women's Division Chairperson

by Roslyn Kimmel

For decades, we cried "Let My People Go" to the Pharaohs of the Soviet Union, in the hope that the Jews would be permitted to leave the country in which they were sorely oppressed. We rallied. We marched. We petitioned. We prayed and we dreamed of the day when the gates of the Iron Curtain would open and Soviet Jews would be able to leave to begin new lives in freedom.

Today our dreams are being realized. Our call has been answered, and Jews are leaving the Soviet Union in unprecedented numbers.

The Ottawa Jewish Community must be made aware of the urgency of this issue. Years ago, we undertook the job of freeing Soviet Jews. That job is not done. Not yet.

We must enlist the energies, talents, and resources of all our people --volunteer and professional; young and old; involved and previously uninvolved.

The women of the Ottawa Jewish Community have always been generous in their support and will continue that tradition of caring and tzedakah, giving meaning to our existence and our dreams.

The cost of making our dream come true is enormous. Operation Exodus is more than a challenge. It is both a wonderful opportunity and a huge responsibility that we must accept without hesitation. We must take extraordinary measures to meet the financial demands this endeavour will require. This challenge belongs to all of us.

From the Editor's Desk

by Elaine Citrome

The ancient Greeks believed that Athena, goddess of Wisdom, emerged full-grown from the forehead of Zeus. Trust a man to give birth without any fuss or muss! And many of us assume that the UJA Women's Division Campaign, like Athena, is reborn yearly without any labour, that it is a continuum. But, to carry the maternal imagery ad nauseam, each new president, like a new mother, puts her own stamp on "her" campaign, and clucks and nurtures and guides, until, at the end of her tenure, she can stand back, heave a sigh of relief, and say, "A job well done".

This newsletter has been inaugurated as a kind of progress report on the campaign. We want to help you appreciate the scope of the agencies we support, the multiplicity of tasks we address, the extent of the generosity of our volunteers with their time and talents, a sense of the importance of the goals we set ourselves, and especially, how vital everybody's contribution, financial and otherwise, is to meeting those goals. It is not given to all of us to be leaders, nor do we all have the means to be major donors, but we can all help to the best of our ability.

We hope you will be informed and entertained as we look back proudly (see article by Bertha Palmer), at the present confidently (see President's Message) and to the future hopefully.

Happenings

The Cabinet

The Cabinet Orientation meeting was an inspiring and motivating experience for all who attended. Roslyn Kimmel greeted us and thanked us for taking leadership roles, reminding the executive that we must act as a team, but also show individual initiative, both in terms of our offices and our financial commitment.

Roz then acknowledged Bertha Palmer, founder and first chairman of Ottawa Women's Division eighteen years ago and, with her husband Abe, recipient of this year's Gilbert Greenberg Award. She also acknowledged Linda Nadolny-Cogan, who is serving a two-year term on the Executive Committee of the Women's Division of the Council of Jewish Federations. Happily, both honorees are still deeply involved in UJA Women's Division.

Two sixteen-year-old participants on the March of the Living, Rochelle Ironstone and Shelley Samel, shared their feelings with us most movingly; unfortunately, decades after the Holocaust, they experienced anti-Semitism first-hand in Poland. They pointed out that in view of the resurgence of anti-Semitic incidents in the U.S.S.R. and throughout Eastern Europe, we are blessed to have a haven for Soviet Jewry. It was heartening to see and hear these bright, committed young women, and to know that UJA Women's Division has future leaders of this calibre.

Lynda Greenberg and Bonnie Merovitz, incoming co-chairmen, introduced the category chairmen and special events chairpeople (see "Circle these dates"), and Associate Vice-Chairs Cally Kardash and Susan Vered introduced their portfolios. We were thrilled to hear that, of those already approached for the 1991 campaign, there has been an average increase of 30% per card.

Our keynote speaker, Carol Kassei, past chairman of Women's Division of Toronto, showed us a video on Operation Exodus and gave us an update on the success of the absorption process in Israel. The cost, if levels of emigration continue at the present rate over the next ten years, could reach $25 billion. It is both an unprecedented challenge and a unique opportunity.

In keeping with our policy of having only those who've made their own personal commitment canvass others, those members who had not yet pledged to the 1991 Campaign and Operation Exodus were then approached, and the evening ended with a toast to a successful campaign.

"Can We Talk?"

(with apologies to Joan Rivers)

This was the question that Chairperson Roz Kimmel asked the assembled division chairpeople and past presidents at the home of Lynda Greenberg. But far from the comedic sthick that usually follows that query, this meeting had a more serious purpose.

First, we heard personal accounts of those who had gone on the March of the Living. We were deeply moved by these accounts of a descent into Hell, and more than ever determined that "never again" would it happen to our people.

We then broke into smaller groups to brainstorm effective and efficient canvassing methods, the results of which should benefit this year's and subsequent fund drives.

It was a very useful and informative beginning to the 1991 campaign.

In Her Own Words

by Bertha Palmer

It was one day in the fall of 1971 that I received a call from the late Hy Hochberg, saying that he would like to come over to discuss a matter of importance. I couldn't imagine what it could be, but upon discussion with him, I learned of the need of launching the Women's Division of the United Jewish Appeal. He furnished me with statistical material based on the needs of Jews in Israel, overseas, and locally. I knew that this was a formidable task, but being of the conviction that women are equal partners in the responsibility of Jewish life, I readily accepted the challenge.

Under any circumstances, to awaken consciousness, to build and to establish a receptive climate to give to the campaign would hardly win a popularity contest. But through the process of education and an entrée to most women's organizations, through personal involvement and that of many women who worked with me, we managed to make inroads in spite of many roadblocks. Education was our strong point. Participation and involvement from the cross-section of our community was established. Liaison representatives of every women's organization were appointed, gaining new allies for the campaign. We employed films, speakers, study groups, and play acting to train canvassers always followed by an evaluation. The chart provides a progress report of our development:

As an organization, I believe we were justified in thinking that we had arrived. We worked tenaciously and proudly joined our men in sharing the responsibility in actively supporting our people. And that is the way it all began!

Respectfully Submitted,

Bertha Palmer

Ottawa Women's Campaign Comprises 12 separate steps...

Come climb the steps with us!

A Dollar-a-Day! We've Come a Long Way!

Eighteen years ago, when Bertha Palmer chaired the first Women's Division campaign, an $18.00 donation—chai— was considered generous. After all, a woman's gift was considered "plus giving" a little something added to her husband's donation, the icing on the cake.

Times change and women, whether they work in or out of the home— or both!— want to stand up and be counted. We make our own personal commitments, and we make a difference.

A loonie a day in the pushke adds up. Think about it.....

Did You Know? It Costs...

$250...	to provide emergency cash for a Soviet family upon their arrival at Ben Gurion Airport in Israel.
$500...	to provide basic furnishings for a family of 3 Soviet immigrants upon their arrival in Israel.
$750...	to provide 6 months of day care subsidies for a Soviet family with 2 children in Israel.
$1,000...	to provide special care and services for an elderly Soviet immigrant adapting to a new life in Israel.
$1,500...	to provide housing for 2 Soviet immigrant students during their first academic year in Israel.
$2,000...	to provide transportation for a husband and wife and their belongings from the Soviet Union to freedom in Israel.
$3,600...	to provide special programs and medical rehabilitation for a disabled Soviet immigrant during his/her first year in Israel.
$5,000...	to provide rental housing for a Soviet family of 3 during their first year in Israel.
$7,500...	to provide transportation to freedom in Israel and direct cash assistance for one immigrant during his/her first year in Israel.
$12,800...	to provide the necessities of life for a Soviet family of 3 during their first year in Israel.
$18,000...	to provide transportation, freight of belongings and the necessities of life including rent, basic furnishings, education, and day care for a family of 3 from the Soviet Union during their first year in Israel.
$250,000...	$250,000 (U.S.) to operate a flight carrying Soviet-Jewish immigrants from an Eastern European city to Ben Gurion Airport, Israel.

Every dollar raised through Operation Exodus will be sent directly to Israel and used only for the rescue and resettlement of Soviet Jews.

1991 U.J.A. Campaign Update

As of July 5, 1990 Women's Division Dollars Raised:

$237,000

This figure includes Operation Exodus donations, and represents 40 major gift cards, at an average 30% increase per card for the general campaign. A great start to a great campaign!

Ralph Kassie
President, Jewish Community
Centre of Ottawa

I am honored to be granted this opportunity to share some thoughts and information with you.

A prime regret that continually haunts me is the lack of substantial numbers of women on all community boards and executives. Yes, there are a handful of dynamic and committed women rising slowly to the top, but there should be significantly greater representation. Jewish women of Ottawa! I urge you please come forward to serve your community. We need you!

Now, stepping down from the pulpit, let me explain why your U.J.A. dollars are critical to the Jewish Community Centre. Aside from the obvious day-to-day operating and maintenance expenses that are becoming astronomical, it has been shown through statistical studies that Jewish affiliation and involvement are sustained primarily through social and recreational contact. The Jewish Community Centre is our only institution that spans all generations and precipitates our Jewishness. A skeleton chronological program guide leads from preschool and daycare to after-school programs, to day-camps, pre-teen and teen youth groups, JSU Hillel, to singles and young adults, to 50 plus and senior adults and golden age. As well, the Centre is in the forefront of recognizing realities of the times through widow support groups, intermarried couples, prospective adoptive parents, learning-disabled youth, physically-handicapped adults and new immigrant families.

I thank you for your support and I look forward to seeing you at the Centre.

JCC starts a Jewish singles travel club

Today's Jewish single is an active, social person who enjoys the finer things in life — meeting new and interesting people, experiencing the thrill that only foreign travel can offer and, perhaps, even meeting that special person out there waiting for each of us.

But travel, which should be one of the joys of the single lifestyle, is too often a disappointing experience. Travelling for the single person can be expensive, restricted and filled with petty irritants.

The Jewish Community Centre would like to help make travel a happier experience for Ottawa Jewish singles.

The JCC in cooperation with INTRA Madison Travel, invites you to join the Ottawa Jewish Singles Travel Club which will offer exclusive trips as well as an opportunity for Ottawa singles to join trips organized by the well-known Premier Jewish Singles.

Premier Jewish Singles is an international organization that promotes a year-round calendar of travel programs exclusively designed to meet the needs of Jewish singles across North America, England and Israel. Originating in St. Louis, Missouri, Premier Jewish Singles has, over the past year, opened in England, Israel and here in Canada. Our Ottawa representative is INTRA Madison Travel.

A variety of quality tours catering to Ottawa's Jewish singles is in the works. These include:

•Las Vegas — A trip for the Ottawa single Jewish community with invitations being sent to the Toronto, Montreal and Maritime JCC's. (Projected departure date: October 18-21).

•Second Annual New Year's Eve in London — A New Year's Eve celebration in cosmopolitan London with other Jewish singles from around the world. (Departure date: December 25-January 3, 1991).

•Skiers Can Do It Downhill — An adventure for the practiced skier and the non-skier alike at Zermatt Switzerland. (Departure date: March 1-8, 1991).

•Annual Jewish Singles Cruise — The event of the year! Join new and repeat "cruisers" on the Royal Caribbean Cruise Line's beautiful ship, Song of America, for what is sure to be the Caribbean social event of the year. (Departure date: January 27-February 3, 1991).

As well, the Ottawa Jewish Singles Club is working on travel options to Israel. Ten day tours with various departure dates are designed to fit the busy schedules of today's singles.

For more information about any of the above trips or to discuss other requests please call Sandy Granatstein at INTRA Madison Travel, 238-4040 or Diane Poriah at the JCC, 238-1818.

Oneg shabbats made Fridays special at JCC Day Camp.

Let's get going on another JCC day!

Registration and spirit hit a high note at JCC Day Camp '90

By Gale Greenberg, Charna Mittleman and Ann-Lynn Rapoport
"Kaf-a-bunga!" "Gimmel a G!" Gimmel an Il! "Vav-vav-vav-vav-aram!" These are just some of the wacky JCC Day Camp songs ringing through the halls of the Jewish Community Campus this summer.

Registration as well as spirit have hit a high note this year at the Jewish Community Centre Day Camp. The numbers have been among the highest ever at this long-time Ottawa institution.

A packed schedule of programs has kept campers very active doing lots of hands-on activities. Sticky little hands were busy making jam, eating popsicles and creating wonderful things in arts and crafts. Even those activities which did not result in dirty hands produced happy smiles on campers' faces.

First session has whizzed by, leaving happy memories of a kaleidoscope of programming highlights. The long list of activities included: neon "madness"; storytelling with Miriam Silver; Oneg Shabbats featuring group cheers and skits; family fun night with a softball game and lots of ice cream; a teddy bear picnic starring Ann-n-Ann Puppets; overnights complete with tents; and evening programs for the younger set.

Prizes and popcorn made Carnival Day a complete success. Rock and Roll Dress-up Day featured air bands and program co-ordinator Ann-Lynn wearing spandex. Visits from the young people of Or Yehuda (Ottawa's project renewal community) and from a troupe of Israeli singers who taught Hebrew songs fostered Jewish spirit.

Outings included a trip to the Bonnechere Caves and the Kanata wave pool, with a picnic at Andrew Hayden Park. First session ended with a barbecue lunch for the entire camp.

Second session promises to be just as packed with exciting, imaginative programs.

Theatre Arts campers put best foot forward

The JCC's Theatre Arts Camp is enjoying its sixth very successful season. It's a unique arts camp which offers an integrated program of ballet, drama, jazz dance and fine arts, as well as swim instruction, for children aged 8 to 13 years.

Each session builds up to the Final Performance, a showcase of all the skills the children had been working on during their busy camp days.

Excitement was high as first session campers prepared to debut their production of How Did We Ever Manage Before the Postman Came?

The halls of the Jewish Community Centre at 151 Chapel were covered with posters announcing the performance. The show was a tremendous success! In 13 days, the children had learned their lines, mastered a demanding choreography, and developed a lot of stage presence.

Serious and committed

"These children in Theatre Arts Camp are serious and committed to doing their best," said Camp Director Dina Migdol. "They want us to take them seriously and show them how to put their best foot forward. It's a pleasure to work with them," she concluded.

Children in second session are now preparing of their new show, 1492 Blues. It's an hilarious parody in which explorer Christopher Columbus comes face to face with the modern world. Early reports indicate that JCC Theatre Arts Camp has another hit in the works.

A three-month dream adventure

When Malca left Harry — to sojourn in Israel

By Malca Goldstein

This past winter of 89/90, I had what I jokingly call 'my sabbatical.'

Undeterred by a husband reluctant for me to be away that length of time, I took off on a three-month dream adventure: I joined a Jewish National Fund work study program for seniors in Israel.

I didn't worry about leaving my husband, Harry, behind as he is a good cook and an even better baker! In any case he did visit part way through the program.

So, no husband, no buddy, alone I joined a small group of seniors from Montreal, ages between 55 and 80 and we travelled to Israel via El Al and were comfortably settled in the Grand Yehalom hotel in the lovely sea-side resort city of Netanya.

This would be my home for the first two months.

First job

My first important job was a personal one, to find a friend who would join me on brisk walks. (Eating three meals in the hotel each day gave me nightmares of coming home looking like a blimp.) I was fortunate to have Helen, (Rosie Lisogursky's mother, for those who remember this talented fitness instructor) a kind thoughtful lady, tiny but a speedy walker.

Our madricha, Hazel, was with us at all times, taking care of our needs and with kindness and patience, trying to integrate our motley group of 17 into a family.

This program requires each participant to do some kind of volunteer work according to their ability and interest. Many choices were given.

I worked three mornings a week in a school for retarded children and teens where I helped in arts and crafts and another volunteer, Hy, did some small but important maintenance.

I was uneasy as to how to conduct myself with these kids. How much physical contact to have, could I put my arm around them, should I touch a shoulder, stroke a curly head of hair?

It certainly warmed me when I saw how helpful these teenagers were with each other and the enthusiasm they showed me.

There was a young lad, about 12, a new immigrant from South Africa, severely physically and mentally handicapped, whose nose and mouth was constantly running. Shalom, an 18-year-old with Down's syndrome, would gently help him keep his face dry, often staying by his side.

What other country would welcome new immigrants with a child so handicapped?

I enjoyed the two mornings a week of exhilarating easy work trimming trees in the JNF Forest near Kochav Yair.

Some used long clippers to trim small branches, others used small saws to cut the larger boughs, and then came the sheppers who dragged the cuttings to the road where Arab women collected them for firewood.

Planted in honor

Each time I approached a tree, I knew it was planted in honor or in memory of someone and I made sure I did a proper job with my saw.

Shai, the forester who instructed us in this work, is a retired civil servant who volunteers his time. He is a lovable bear of a man, big, bearded, happy, like a figure out of the Bible. Often he would have us sit down during our break and with great love of the land, proceed to describe and name the many varieties of plant life in a square meter of ground.

I tutored a young student two afternoons a week in my hotel and enjoyed two afternoons of Hebrew classes, lectures and discussions. Our days were full and stimulating.

Folk dance class

I went to the local Association of Americans and Canadians in Israel where I participated in a folk dance class. There were many opportunities to socialize with the large English speaking population of residents and winter guests.

On the days we were unable to work in the forest because of rain, we were taken on interesting outings. Some of these were to the Magen David Adom facility, the wonderful Hadassim Village, a newly opened pre-historic cave and a kibbutz museum, among others.

During the two month stay in Netanya, we were taken on a six-day trip to the Dead Sea and Eilat, visiting many interesting places on the way, as time permitted. On this excursion we were joined by a large group of American volunteers (seniors). They were a fun loving talented group.

A fella gets lonely — and Harry Goldstein did visit his beloved Malca part way through the program. Here the couple plants a tree in the JNF Forest.

Malca displays her archaeological find from Tel Maresha, the handle and three inches of a Byzantine jug.

Another special trip was to the Galil where we settled in at the guest house of kibbutz Ayelet Hashachar, and travelled north and south from there.

In Metulla, we visited the Good Fence, saw bus loads of Lebanese women returning home after working in Israel, and were received by city officials.

In Safed, we enjoyed our box lunches sitting on a park bench on the main street, watching the locals watch us.

On the Golan Heights, we were lunch guests at an artillery base and were served course after course of Middle East delicacies by the soldiers. These young men were eagerly looking forward to all the great leftovers.

It was windy and cold at this base and while walking around talking to these youngsters I found myself buttoning the open jackets. Once a Jewish mother, always a Jewish mother. Our group chipped in and bought the unit a television set for them to enjoy and to remember us by.

We were introduced to a wealth of history on the Golan. A very special treat was a visit to the Golan Wineries where we enjoyed a variety of delicious wines, including a recent prize winner.

While in Netanya I had a bad cough, felt lousy for a few days and finally gave in, took to my bed and decided I needed help. The hotel owner Zvi, said he would send for his personal physician.

Within 10 minutes there was a knock at my door, I called out "it's open" and in walked a tall French Jew announcing he is Dr. Rachamin (Rachamin means mercy in Hebrew). I knew I was in good hands!

The third month was spent in Jerusalem at the Mount Zion Hotel on Hebron Road, which has a magnificent view of the Old City.

Such enthusiasm

Three mornings a week I was bused to Beit Shemesh, about 35 minutes from Jerusalem. There I helped the English teacher by tutoring small groups of 11 and 12 year olds. I don't expect I'll ever see such enthusiasm in students.

Instead of forest work, I chose to help out at Life Line for the Old (Ha Yad Lkashish), a drop-in centre where I was able to share and demonstrate some craft ideas.

On an "Archeological Seminars" tour, we were taken to Tel Maresha, to the site of a Roman Amphitheatre where we participated in a few hours of digging and sifting. Imagine my excitement when I dug in my shovel and uncovered the handle and three inches of a Byzantine jug!

"Archeological Seminars" escorted us on bus and walking tours around Jerusalem. We lunched in a Roman restaurant, dressed in togas and laurel wreaths and ate with authentic reproductions of bowls and cutlery.

Everything about the restaurant is authentic. No forks at that time, just spoons and knives. The food was also what the ancient Romans would have enjoyed — mounds of warm pita, bowls of olive oil and spicy zatar for dipping. Also served was a thick vegetable soup. Sheer Heaven all!

In the evenings we enjoyed lectures, Hebrew classes and our own musical performances.

Enthusiastic response

As time went on I realized the importance of this volunteer program, both for us and for the Israelis. Wherever we went and announced we were volunteers, the response was always an enthusiastic thanks and "kol hakavod."

As time to leave drew near, we began to have warm, friendly parties and a banquet together with the many other groups.

Our madricha, Hazel, the JNF liaison officer Meir Malka, and all those connected with our tour went above and beyond the call of duty to give us the best time possible.

I have written this because I wanted to share my experiences in the country which holds my heart, and perhaps to plant the seed of interest in other seniors. The Jewish National Fund Work Study Program is a wonderful alternative to spending three months down south; you not only have a winter holiday, you have an experience whose memories will stay with you long after it's over.

And in the process, you're also helping Israel.

KID LIT

Taking Heart

There are times when each of us, adult and child alike, is called upon to show courage. Prolonged illness, persistent difficulties at home or at school, family breakdowns, economic downturns, disabilities — these situations and others regularly test our spirit, our resolve and our courage.

Even so, we are never fully prepared for that ultimate call for courage, putting ourselves on the line as a matter of principle. Yet that is the kind of bravery Ottawa Jewry assumed last May when we openly confronted the harsh reality of physically violent anti-Semitism here in our own city.

Violence against the dead is violence against the living. The desecration of our cemetery and a threat against our school children are one and the same thing.

A July gathering of Fascist Skinheads in nearby Metcalfe, Ontario is further cause for condemnation and vigilance.

At such times the support of our fellow citizens — as exemplified by the rally led by our elected politicians on May 20th at Nepean City Hall — is essential. Where neighbours stand unflinchingly shoulder to shoulder evil cannot take root.

A recent kid's novel that won the 1989 John Newbery Medal for "the most distinguished contribution to American literature for children" hauntingly depicts such support. Now is a fitting time for our kids to read or hear this story.

Number The Stars

By Lois Lowry
Houghton Mifflin Co. 1989
137 pages Ages 7-10
Available at Hillel Academy Library

Number The Stars is a novel that skillfully and realistically portrays those critical days during World War II when the ordinary citizens of Denmark — your neighbours and mine — put their lives on the line to save their Jewish fellow citizens.

It is 1943. Denmark has been under German occupation for three years. Suddenly the German soldiers on every Copenhagen Street corner become more threatening, even toward school children like ten-year-old Annemarie Johansen and her best friend, Ellen Rosen.

Is it because of recent acts of sabotage by the Danish Resistance or is something new afoot?

Frightened but hopeful

The girls and their families are frightened but hopeful. Nothing will happen, they repeatedly assure themselves.

But when the Rosens go to synagogue for Rosh Hashonah and learn that the Germans have confiscated the membership lists of all the synagogues in Denmark, they are less sure.

Ellen is immediately taken in by the Johansens. Her parents are taken care of by others. And just in time.

Wins scholarship to pursue Jewish studies

The Nazis do come for the Rosens in the middle of the night. And finding them gone, search the Johansen's apartment, paying particular attention to the only dark-haired "daughter."

More quickly

The Johansens move quickly to get Ellen to the relative safety of Mrs. Johansen's fisherman brother, Uncle Henrik. He lives in the countryside near Gilleleje, a fishing village on the Kattegat, a part of the North Sea closest to neutral Sweden.

But at Uncle Henrik's the girls and their families are in even greater danger. Uncle Henrik's home is one of the assembly points for Jews being smuggled to freedom in Sweden.

Test of courage

The final hours before the departure of the fishing boats with their hidden cargo become the ultimate test of courage not only for the adults but also for Annemarie.

By focusing on the routine give-and-take friendship of two ordinary families, Lois Lowry has skillfully crafted a memorable, utterly believable tribute to human decency.

Lowry's characters ring true. Her plot line follows naturally. Her pacing between fear/relief, ordinary family life and the extraordinary is gripping.

This book is more than a good read. It's a beacon of hope and comfort, a plea for a world of friendship and decency.

Throughout the ages Jews have placed a great deal of emphasis on the education of their children.

In keeping with that long tradition of encouraging Jewish youth in their quest for knowledge, the Jewish Education Council of Montreal, an Associated Organization of Allied Jewish Community Services has presented the Jewish Community Foundation Scholarship Award in Teacher Training to Mary-Joy Klein of Ottawa.

The presentation took place June 11 at the McGill Jewish Studies graduation.

The scholarship, $5,000 for the 1990/91 academic year, was conceived as an incentive for students to pursue a career in Jewish education.

Mary-Joy Klein, a graduate of Ottawa's Hillel Academy, earned a B.Sc. at McGill University followed by courses in psychology and Jewish Studies at Carleton University and McGill respectively. She will be attending the Jewish Teacher Training Program at McGill.

Mary-Joy Klein

In her letter of application for the scholarship, Mary-Joy said, "I want to be part of the early learning experience which will help the students feel part of the Jewish community and become involved in the building of a strong Jewish identity for the future."

JEC President Stanley Plotnick underscored the importance of attracting the finest committed young people to careers in Jewish education.

"Mary-Joy is a fitting role model for our students as well as for our future teachers," he said.

Territories or peace— not both, Dayan says

By Gabriella Goliger

The Likud dream of Greater Israel is completely incompatible with any hope of peace, security and full democracy for all of Israel's citizens.

This was the conclusion drawn by Yael Dayan, noted Israeli author, journalist and daughter of the late General Moshe Dayan, during her talk at the Jewish Community Centre in April.

The event was sponsored by Canadian Friends of Peace Now/Shalom Achshav.

Challenged audience

A powerful, dynamic speaker, Dayan challenged the audience that filled the Assembly Hall of the JCC to contemplate the consequences of Israel's holding onto the West Bank and Gaza indefinitely.

"Israel can have the territories, or Israel can have peace, but we must not delude ourselves into thinking we can have both," she said.

Options clear

According to Dayan, the options are clear: Israel could sacrifice some territory in exchange for a negotiated peace settlement and security arrangements. Or the country could maintain the status quo and resign itself to perpetual strife with the Palestinians and its Arab neighbours. The former option — putting peace first — is much more consistent with the original principles of Zionism than the latter, she said.

"Zionism was never about the size of the Jewish state. It was about the quality of life in that state," she said.

Failed to draw lessons

In her analysis of the current situation Dayan lamented that Israel has failed to draw lessons from the revolutionary changes in Eastern Europe. The overthrow of communist regimes shows that nations cannot be held hostage against their will. Force of arms cannot snuff out nationalist yearnings and cannot suppress people indefinitely, Dayan argued. The fact that even the mighty Russian empire is in jeopardy over nationalism reinforces the point, she said.

Dayan went further to say that the issue of Palestinian nationalism could not be settled by military might. The Arabs tried for 40 years to erect Palestine through war and failed. They learned the hard way that they could not conquer Israel. Now Israel has to realize that its army — although strongest in the Middle East — cannot conquer Palestinian unrest nor the aspirations behind it. The best the army can do is contain the uprising, but at great price to Israeli morale.

Defended principle

Dayan also defended the principle of national self-determination, both for Israelis and Palestinians.

"How ironic," she said, that we who fought so hard for our own self-determination, are telling another people that they are not even a people."

A longtime member of Israel's Labour Party, Dayan ridiculed the notion that the right wing view represents the consensus of opinion in Israel. The Israeli populace is sharply and almost evenly divided over the questions of peace and territory and it was this that caused the downfall of the coalition government, she said.

"There's a lot of hypocrisy in telling the Diaspora it has to support a united front," she said. "Israel is polarized."

Blasted Likud

She also blasted the Likud for advocating that more territory equals more security. New sophisticated long-range weaponry has made the concept of strategic depth obsolete, she said. Israel is in far greater danger of missiles from Baghdad than it would be from a small, demilitarized Palestinian state, regardless of how close it is to Tel Aviv.

Real threat

The real threat to Israel's security comes from internal unrest in the territories and the continued animosity of Arab world. Creation of a Palestinian state would take away much of the motivation on the Arab side for prolonging the conflict. On the other hand, to offer the Palestinians no real hope for their future means that the intifada will go on and on, she said.

Not take seriously

Dayan added that no Palestinian would ever take the Likud autonomy plan seriously because it promises the people nothing more than mere physical survival.

"The only healthy option is to get out of there (the territories) and put a proper border between us."

CJC calls for federal intervention at Oka

In a recent letter to Indian Affairs Minister Tom Siddon, Canadian Jewish Congress President Les Scheininger has called for the involvement of the federal government more directly and openly with the Government of Quebec in reaching a peaceful and equitable solution to the present impasse with aboriginal peoples in the areas of Oka and Chateaugay (the Mercier Bridge).

"One police officer, tragically, has already been killed, and that's one loss of life too many," Scheininger wrote.

Fertile ground for bigots

"The longer this situation continues unresolved, the more fertile the ground becomes for bigots in the community to emerge with open manifestations of repugnant racism."

Mr. Scheininger also expressed support for the Prime Minister's stated intention to establish a Royal Commission on Indian, Inuit and Métis affairs.

In the letter to Mr. Siddon, the CJC President urged the immediate convening of such a commission whose mandate would include an examination of the relationship of Canadian society and governments with the aboriginal peoples.

"...as my fathers planted for me, so do I plant for my children"

The Talmud tells of a sage, who, in his travels, saw an old man planting the seed of a tree.

"When do you think this tree will bear fruit?" the sage asked the man.

"In about 40 years," was the reply.

"Do you expect to live for 40 years and eat of the fruit of your labor?"

"I did not find the world desolate when I entered it, and, as my fathers planted for me before I was born, so do I plant for those who will come after me."

Community Calendar

New Policy regarding Community Calendar

After consulting with community leadership and agency professionals the following policies are being implemented immediately.

- *Only one person will be responsible for calendar booking. This will be a Vaad employee and not the person sitting at the JCC switchboard. The Executive Director of the Vaad has assigned Howard Goldberg to this task. Mr. Goldberg is on staff at the Vaad and is very familiar with our community organizations, agencies and institutions.
- *While on an emergency basis bookings made by telephone will be accepted, we are urging organizations that the standard procedure would be for organizations to submit a written request for inclusion in the Community Calendar. The Vaad will be sending you a standard format outlining the time, location and nature of the event. Upon receipt of the written request the Vaad will contact your organization with a confirmation. The Calendar Co-ordinator is to be contacted between 10:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m. Monday to Friday. No bookings are to be accepted after hours.
- *Administrative procedures have been put in place in order to allow organizations to book up to a year in advance.
- *All bookings are to be put on computer so that there will be a central registry of community events.
- *In case of a dispute over a double booking or conflict between two organizations the ruling of the Protocol Committee will be deemed as final. Any sanctions will be imposed only as a last resort. (Sanctions may include refusal to accept advertising of the event in the Bulletin only after flagrant refusal to follow proper procedures.)
- *The Vaad will publicize this new policy in the Bulletin and encourage adherence and co-operation.

Abe Engel appointed SIB Ottawa director

The Board of Directors of State of Israel Bonds is pleased to announce the appointment of Abe Engel as director of the Ottawa office, effective August 1.

He succeeds Former Director Jim Hassan, who has transferred to the organization's Denver, Colorado office.

A native Montrealer, in his early 20's Abe moved to Ottawa. He brings to the position an indepth understanding of community work and business as well as hands-on knowledge of the Ottawa Jewish community.

No stranger to Jewish communal work, Abe served in a professional capacity in that area from 1961-73, in a fundraising role for State of Israel Bonds (Toronto and Montreal) and Combined Jewish Appeal (Montreal), and in several capacities in the employ of the Jewish Community Council of Ottawa/Vaad Ha'Ir under the late Hy Hochberg.

From 1973-86 he owned and operated Kiddie Kobbler franchises at Bayshore and Carlingwood Malls. Prior to accepting his new position, he was employed by Regional Realty Ltd. as an agent in the
